Workshop Description

Every day we face situations and challenges just by living in a world that is increasingly more complex. Our responses/ reactions to these situations determine our happiness, effectiveness and well-being. In our work, we are faced with both satisfaction in knowing that our work makes a difference in equity and equality of access as well as challenges to being able to provide the best quality of service we desire. In this workshop, we will learn how our brains serve us in these endeavors and how our own values and mind traps can be harnessed to provide more satisfaction, effectiveness and alignment with the communities that we work with.

Educational Objectives

- To learn what happens in our brains that cause emotional reactions
- To understand our individual core values and how they drive our behavior
- To learn and notice the ways our mind traps influence our choices
- To learn a process for understanding our thought processes and to evaluate their effectiveness for us
- To apply appreciative inquiry to enhance our superpower/s
- To identify strategies that can enable us to develop and utilize self-awareness in order to be more resilient.
